Screening and Triage: Implementing screening measures such as temperature checks and symptom assessments for students, faculty, staff, and patients can help identify individuals who may have COVID-19 or have been exposed to the virus. Proper triaging can help determine appropriate care pathways and minimize the risk of transmission.

Physical Distancing: Promote physical distancing measures in classrooms, labs, and common areas to reduce close contact between individuals. This may involve rearranging seating, limiting the number of people in shared spaces, and maintaining a safe distance during clinical procedures.

Tele-dentistry: we utilized tele-dentistry platforms when feasible to provide remote consultations, education, and follow-ups. This helped to minimize in-person contact and reduce the risk of transmission.

Educational Adaptations: We modified the curriculum and teaching methodologies to accommodate the pandemic situation. This may include hybrid or online learning options, virtual simulations, and reduced group activities or rotations.
