‘Equity’ means fairness, righteousness and justness in the distribution of benefits and responsibilities between two genders regardless of any gender discrimination of man and woman according to Oxford dictionary.

The concept of gender equity primarily refer to the full equality of men and women to enjoy the complete range of political, economic, civil, social and cultural rights, with no one being denied access to these rights, or deprived of them, because of their sex according to universal declaration of human rights. The notion of equality should not be just dictated by numbers but a culture of equality between the genders.

Gender equality is not only a fundamental human right, but a necessary foundation for a peaceful, prosperous and sustainable world. Women are the foundation, on whose back a progressive society thrives, each woman is a force of power, ideas, dedication, brilliance and winning charisma. We believe each woman is a source of potential which can change the world for good

Gender equality is the 5th goal among the 17 sustainable development goals adopted by United Nations. The constitution of India also recognizes the principle of gender equality in its Preamble, Fundamental rights and under the Directive Principles of State policy.

Reasons for gender inequalities :

1. Inequality is because of discrimination in family, society, culture, religious norms, societal institutions and biological views.
2. It is because of gender equity barriers, patriarchal societies, poverty, women are vulnerable of employment, unequal distribution of opportunities and education, fewer social benefits that disturbs the gender equilibrium.
3. Violence against women continues to undermine the effort to reach all goals of gender equity.

4. Religious paradigms: Religion can act as a significant counterweight to support hegemonic institutions of the state, market, society and culture to perpetuate any ideology regarding gender discrimination and gender equity

Goal targets for gender equality:

1. Ending all forms of discrimination against all women and girls everywhere.
2. Elimination of all forms of violence against women and girls in the public and private spheres, including trafficking and sexual and other types of exploitation.
3. Eliminating all harmful practices, such as child, early and forced marriage, and female genital mutilation.
4. Recognising and valuing unpaid care and domestic work through the provision of public services, infrastructure, and social protection policies, and the promotion of shared responsibility within the household and the family as nationally appropriate.
5. Ensure women's full and effective participation and equal opportunities for leadership at all levels of decision-making in political, economic, and public life.

Gender equity can be achieved by :

1. Achieving equitable access to adequate food and basic needs to increase personal security.
  2. Balance in sustainable development decision-making.
  3. Creating equal economic opportunities.
- Equitable access to life resources and medical c

1. To make education gender sensitive.
2. To support women leadership

3. Controlling gender-blind policies
4. Changing the power structure between women and men.

Status of women in higher education :

‘To educate your women first and leave them to themselves, they will tell you what reforms are necessary’- Swami Vivekananda. Higher education makes a vital contribution to sustainable development through the generation and dissemination of knowledge.

Women’s participation has grown in institutions over the last few years, from students to faculty and across all streams. Women’s enrolment in higher education, was less than 10% of the total enrolment at the time of Independence, has risen to 48.6% in 2018-19. The total enrolment has grown to 37.4 million (Hindustan Times)

Keeping in mind the vision of the Prime Minister of India, Shri Narendra Modi, and the aim of International Women’s Day, celebrated on 8th March every year, the momentum of empowerment of girls and women through education in all institutes is imperative to take women’s rights forward. Hence the focus on the inclusion of female participation in higher education institutes. In accordance with the rise in the enrolment of females in higher education, there is a need for a systemic expansion of the delivery system. Gender equality has been encouraged in the recruitment and placement of both teaching and non-teaching staff in higher education institutes.

As per the statistics of 2018-19, 43.82% of women were enrolled at the Ph.D. level as opposed 40% in 2013-14. This was possible because of various measures taken by the government, such as women candidates being allowed a relaxation of one year for M.Phil. and two years for Ph.D. in the maximum duration, i.e. two to six years respectively as per the University Grants Commission (UGC), 2016. In addition, provisions have been made for women candidates to get maternity leave/child care leave up to 240 days, during the duration of the M.Phil. / PhD. Through these various initiatives of the government, there has been an overall increase in the enrolment of women in higher education. This has resulted in an improvement in the Gender Parity Index (GPI). The GPI has increased from 0.92 in 2013-14 to 1 in 2018-19.

Recently, all universities were directed the UGC to conduct seminars on gender bias and stereotyping, gender equality and women's rights in all colleges. Student welfare and councils in colleges and universities have been encouraged to hold activities like street plays, flash mobs and mime shows on women's issues, and all colleges and universities must prominently display women's helpline numbers at different places on campuses.

The equal participation of women in higher education will help India make a vital contribution to sustainable development. Along with the provision of equal access to education, quality and affordability must also be emphasised.

Objectives toward sustainable Gender equity :

1. Physical security
2. Eradication of gender based violence
3. Guaranteeing legal identity.
4. Enabling access to and control over resources.
5. Providing access to decent work and livelihoods.
6. Ensuring access to public services.
7. Guaranteeing access to information.
8. Facilitating access to information.
9. Facilitating access to justice.
10. Measuring social inclusion and access to Rights.
11. Valuing social cohesion and diversity.

‘WOMEN at MRADCH:

Gender equality is of prime importance in educational institutes as education enables girls and boys, women and men to participate in social, economic and political life and is a base for development of a democratic society. Education can be crucial to changing attitudes into accepting gender equality as a fundamental social value.

Teachers are important starting points for promoting gender equality in education as their attitudes and instructional practices are known to affect gender equality. We at MRADCH sensitize all our teachers and address all issues related to gender equality with an open mind in an unbiased manner.

Though women remain under represented at all levels across the globe, we at MRADCH are proud to say that women represent at higher posts in MRADCH, holding the posts of, vice-principals, Heads of the departments and professor etc. The most important thing to mention here is the involvement of all these female faculties in the decision making process. The policy of the institute is to provide equal opportunities to the staff and students irrespective of their gender.

In educational institutions teachers play an important role in gender equality by not differentiating between girls and boys and providing equal learning opportunities to both. Girl students are provided with a secure and protective environment in the campus and they also represent the various committees and are actively involved in the various academic, cultural, sports and other extracurricular activities and are given equal opportunities as the boys

Similarly all the patients are treated in a fair way with due respect irrespective of their gender, thus ensuring gender equality in the dental hospital. The concept of giving equal opportunity to all patients for all types of treatments is also imbibed in all the students during their learning stages.
