Dentistry has experienced remarkable advancements and scientifically proven approaches have evolved, that now provide the dental patient with esthetically and functionally excellent options for tooth replacement. The partially edentulous patient can now undergo replacement of a single tooth or several missing teeth with implant retained crowns that provide the same function and esthetics they had with their natural teeth.

Through the use of implant stabilized and/or retained removable prostheses the completely edentulous patient no longer has to endure compromised function and the reduced confidence that traditional full denture wearers commonly experienced.

The restoration of dental implants used to be considered a highly advanced procedure for oral healthcare that was reserved for specialists and required training beyond the regular dental school curriculum. Thus, education in implantdentistry has become a regular part of the training of a large percentage of dentalstudents, including, in many schools, the planning and placement of restorations on implants in dental student patients.

A video demonstration of the treatment for a special child with parental presence in the operatory. As these children need both emotional and physical support, special attention, TLC (tender loving care) and modification in treatment procedures is very much essential.

Parental support and understanding plays a vital role. Their presence in the operatory gives the child a sense of security and thus helps us in achieving successful treatment outcomes.
